Scene 1: The Teenager's Decision

(Narrator enters the stage.)

Narrator: Welcome, everyone! Tonight, we'll follow the life of a boy named Sam. At each critical juncture in his life, we need your help to make his decisions. Let's start when Sam is 15 years old.

(Young Sam enters the stage, looking confused and holding a school form. Sam's Mother and Friend enter as well.)

Young Sam: I just finished 10th grade, but now I have to choose a stream: Arts, Commerce, or Science. I love Arts, but my parents want me to take Science. Most of my friends are choosing Commerce.

Sam's Mother: Sam, Science is the best option. It has great career prospects.

Sam's Friend: Commerce is where all the fun is. We can stick together!

(Narrator steps forward and addresses the audience.)

Narrator: What do you think, audience? Should Sam choose Arts, Commerce, or Science?

(Audience gives their input. After hearing the majority decision, the narrator continues.)

Narrator: Sam has decided to choose [insert chosen stream based on audience input]. Let's see how this decision impacts his life.

(Young Sam exits, Adult Sam enters.)

Narrator: By choosing [chosen stream], Sam excelled in his studies, leading to numerous opportunities. He gained valuable skills and knowledge, setting a strong foundation for his future.

Scene 2: The Career Crossroad

(Adult Sam, now 25 years old, enters the stage, dressed professionally and holding two offer letters. Sam's Boss enters.)

Adult Sam: I've graduated in Data Engineering, and I have two job offers: one in application development with a high salary and another in data engineering, my field of study, with a moderate salary. I need to decide, but my family is counting on me to bring in a higher income, and I love data engineering.

Sam's Boss: The high-paying job in application development could secure your financial future, Sam.

Sam's Friend: But you've always been passionate about data engineering.

(Narrator steps forward again.)

Narrator: What do you think, audience? Should Sam go for the high-paying application development job or stay true to his data engineering roots?

(Audience gives their input. After hearing the majority decision, the narrator continues.)

Narrator: Sam has decided to go for [insert chosen option based on audience input]. Let's see how this decision impacts his life.

(Adult Sam exits, Adult Sam re-enters looking content or stressed depending on the choice.)

Narrator: By choosing [chosen career path], Sam [describe consequence: thrived in his high-paying job but faced high stress and little time for personal life / remained passionate in his field and enjoyed a balanced life despite a lower salary].

Scene 3: The Marriage Decision

(Adult Sam, now 30 years old, stands next to his friend and his mother.)

Sam : I really love my girlfriend and I am not going to listen to anyone. I am going to marry the love of my life

Sam's Mother: Sam, it's time you think about marriage. We've found a wonderful girl for an arranged marriage. She comes from a rich family and she is a single child. If you know what I mean.

Sam's Friend: But Sam, what about the girl you've been dating for years? You've built a strong relationship with her.

Sam: I care deeply about my girlfriend, but my parents have always supported me, and they want me to consider this match.

(Narrator steps forward.)

Narrator: What do you think, audience? Should Sam go for an arranged marriage or a love marriage?

(Audience gives their input. After hearing the majority decision, the narrator continues.)

Narrator: Sam has decided to go for [insert chosen option based on audience input]. Let's see how this decision impacts his life.

(Adult Sam exits, Middle-aged Sam enters with his spouse.)

Narrator: By choosing [chosen marriage type], Sam [describe consequence: built a strong, supportive relationship through an arranged marriage / followed his heart and strengthened his bond with his love].

Scene 4: Reflecting on Life

(Middle-aged Sam, now 60 years old, enters the stage. He looks around thoughtfully.)

Narrator: And here we are, Sam at the age of 60. Reflecting on his life and the decisions he made. Let's see how he feels about the paths he chose.

Middle-aged Sam: Looking back, every choice led me to where I am today. Each decision was a step in my journey. Thank you all for helping me on this journey. Your choices became my life.

Narrator: And so, the story of Sam shows us the power of decisions. Remember, every choice matters. Thank you for being part of Sam's journey tonight!

(All characters take a bow.)
